Good pedestrian and bicycle connections are essential to building an active, walkable urban center. Share your ideas with Planning Commissioners, other design professionals, and City staff at this workshop. Roll up your sleeves to help develop ideas and proposals for a pedestrian framework that connects important destinations, activity nodes, and open space to make Northgate a pedestrian oriented urban center.

Sign up today for the workshop and to get information about an upcoming pedestrian connections survey and self-guided tours that will help participants and others get an “on the ground” look at pedestrian connections – what exists, as well as gaps and opportunities.

This event is part of a series of project activities to implement the City’s Northgate Resolution, adopted by the Mayor and Council in 2003.

REGISTRATION FORM

☐ I plan to attend the Northgate Pedestrian Connections workshop on Thursday, March 25.

☐ I’m not able to attend the March 25 workshop, but would like to be on the mailing list for similar events in the future.
